

UZBEK LITERATURE FOR PRIMARY SCHOOL CHILDREN

*Student: 3rd-year student of SamDCHTI
«English Philology and Translation Studies» faculty,*

Khikmatullayeva Durdona

*Teacher : teacher of SamDCHTI
«English Philology and Translation Studies» faculty,*

Yusupov Asror Raimqul ugli

Abstract: Indeed, in carrying out this serious task, more precisely, in raising the generation of an independent country mature in all aspects, the incomparable Uzbek children's literature, which has become a reality on the basis of centuries-old folk traditions, national values, folklore examples, traditions of our national literature and the literature of the world nations. there is a place. For more than half a century, pedagogical universities and colleges students of primary education, preschool education are studying this subject in depth. There is no doubt that the textbooks and manuals published in the field of children's literature during this period have been a spiritual and spiritual force in educating the young generation.

Keywords: foreign language; language teaching; early foreign language education, young learners, morality, education, religion, value, teaching more effective, by attending to learning and the inner mental world of the learner, and by then understanding how classroom activities and teacher decisions can create, or limit.

Introduction

In this article the aim of educating English language to young learners, the development of Uzbekistan training system have been discussed. This article also deals with younger kid's foreign language acquisition and getting to know within the scope of the very early tiers of the faculty system. Although there are many unorganized theories, opinions, models, and proposals about how to teach modern-day languages to younger children, we will be focusing on the work of researches who have extensively contributed to this location of investigation.

Ever on account that I am a student myself, the Uzbekistan education system has been promoting foreign language studies. Back then, college students started learning the first foreign language in the fifth grade. Nowadays, the national curriculum introduces the first compulsory foreign language in the 1rd grade. All the instructors of English in kingdom schools have to observe the common country wide application designed via the Ministry of Education. They are free to use any of the ministry-approved textbooks which they find suitable for their desires or their students' profile. Students are assessed in accordance to the frequent criteria; therefore, at the give up of every 12 months of learn about they have to be assessed according to the abilities mentioned in the country wide program. According to the Common European Frame of Reference for Language, by the cease of excessive college students should have reached the B2 level.

Most Uzbekistan colleges pick English either as the first or the second compulsory overseas language. If college students begin getting to know English in most important school, they generally have the same professional instructor from the 1rd grade till they are in the 5th grade, when they finish secondary college first level. During principal and secondary college years, foreign language research are dispensed 2, most three hours a week for increasing or improving linguistic competencies.

There are many reasons for starting with the teaching of English at an early age. As the idea "teaching English to young learners" suggests, age performs a necessary role in what we train and how we teach it, on account that a young learner class is distinctive from an adult and/or a teenager type in phrases of the learners' language getting to know needs, the language competences emphasized, and the cognitive skills addressed. Specialists have in mind and expect that gaining some extra years for the learning of English as the most vital global language will take newcomers to greater tiers of competence in its use. Language researchers and educationalists point out that the youthful youth are the much less difficulty they have with the second language acquisition because of the larger plasticity of their neuronal circuits. Early getting to know of a second language is also hoped to pave the way for greater intercultural perception and facilitate the later gaining knowledge of a third or fourth language. Studies have proved that getting to know English at an early age helps college students hold close their mom tongue better, concurrently enabling them to acquire wonderful talent in their second language. The implementation of English educating in kindergarten may also emerge as a beneficial skill for the youthful technology to recognize a deeper expertise of religions and cultures in the world.

The trouble of spiritual-moral education in our republic is more severe than ever. There are pretty a lot of reasons for that. They are: (a) our society wishes the coaching of widely educated, tremendously ethical people having both understanding and nice persona features; (b) in the modern-day world, a schoolchild lives and develops being uncovered to a multitude of diverse sources of have an effect on each positive and negative; (c) training as it is does not assurance a excessive stage of spiritual-moral education, because character constructing is systemic, goal-oriented, and coordinated on the teachers' have an impact on the character with a view to the formation of positive personal and social qualities in him; (d) provision with moral knowledge is essential because it both informs the schoolchild about the norms of conduct anticipated in modern-day society, and gives an thinking about the consequences of violation of the norms or the penalties of this action for the surrounding human beings.

REFERENS:

1. Devitt, Amy J. "A Theory of Genre". Writing Genres. Carbondale: Southern Illinois University Press, 2004.
2. Fairclough, Norman. Analysing Discourse: Textual Analysis for Social Research Routledge, 2003.
3. Genette, Gérard. The Architext: An Introduction. 1979. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1992.
4. Jamieson, Kathleen M. "Antecedent Genre as Rhetorical Constraint". Quarterly Journal of Speech.