Moreover, if you speak fluent English, your job opportunities are much better than those who are average in English, and it is inevitably leading to a certain social status being assigned to fluent English speakers. The number of people trying to learn the language is growing day by day because of this social status factor

✓ Career Opportunities.

If you have a vast knowledge of English, then there are various fields in which you can pursue your career. To begin with, call centres and helpline centres, where you need to have good English speaking skills in order to understand and make the other person understand the problem. Then comes the translation either translating English to some other language or vice versa (Whorf, 1956). Also, anchoring carrier also requires a person with good speaking ability who can instantaneously frame words and phrases in a good way. Further, writing and editing, to write a good stuff requires a good knowledge of using the words in such a way so that the audience becomes more interested in reading your content. So, such writing needs a person with good ability in thinking and writing in English. Moreover, carriers like acting, dancing, singing etc. though need not a qualification in English but if you have good English speaking skills then you are likely to become more famous and communicating with the people (Sneddon, 2003). There are various other professions like, Journalism, Marketing and Advertisement in which you can achieve a good position if you have good knowledge of the language.

English is the global language and one of the most dominating languages of the world which is having its impact on every field of work. English is also the most popular language when it comes to business, with many leading international organizations using it as their official language. English is the working language of many international organizations like NATO and the UN and it's also the language of global advertising. The real situation is that wherever you go in the world, the common and second language is English. The English language came to India by the foreigners.

In conclusion, the study shows that these students find it important because they have acknowledged English as an international language which they can use to communicate with people from all over the world, during for example travels. The main areas in which they use their English skills are when they watch TV, use the Internet, listen to music and while playing videogames. Future studies and jobs as main reasons for learning English could not be verified. The students performed well on the diagnostic test and that may correlate to their positive attitudes towards the English language.
