Abstract: This article provides information about the fact that we, the young generation, who are the pillars of the newly developing Uzbekistan, should show the rich and indelible heritage of our country's ancient history in front of our people. Raising and further developing traditional national values in our country is not the work of one or two people. Of course, for this, i.e., for "renaissance" (development, rejuvenation, awakening, revival and rise), we all need to work together. We need to make good use of the wide opportunities given to young people and reach higher heights in comparison to other countries in mutual cooperation with socially, economically and intellectually successful people. We should not give up such opportunities, on the contrary, we should inculcate in the minds of people the promotion of the cultural development of our nation. Using these opportunities, we must never go back and only take steps forward.

Key words: the ancient world, the future, education, socio-economic, personality, patriotism, youth, great country

Today, another important awakening process is taking place in our country. Therefore, the words "new Uzbekistan" and "third renaissance" resonate harmoniously in our lives and inspire our people towards great goals. The history of mankind shows that the processes of spiritual awakening in the life of any nation lead to the realization of national identity and raise the country's economic and cultural development to a new level. Nowadays, Uzbekistan is becoming a country of democratic changes, broad opportunities and practical work. This process is the biggest result of our reforms for our young people who are growing up now. It is known to everyone that today's symbol of Uzbekistan is divided into two ancient world renaissance periods. In order for our president's idea that we will create the foundation of the third renaissance to become an idea, first of all, we should all believe in the same way and create a moral and spiritual state of people's belief in this idea in their worldview. Young people are being prepared as leaders in creativity, science, and education. Where there is research, it is natural that along with achievements, there will be shortcomings and defect. Our ancient history, our rich cultural heritage, our national religious values and our identity have been restore. It must be said openly that along with the great achievements in independent development, our path was not free from some mistakes and shortcomings. The processes aimed at abandoning the authoritarian system and establishing a democratic society are complex and the dangerous period itself has put various problems and tasks in front of us daily. Sometimes our knowledge, experience, will and determination are enough to solve them successfully, and sometimes there are cases where it is not enough. Such wonderful intentions make us all happy. At the same time, it is worth noting that we are not proud of these democratic changes to get into different ratings, but because democratic changes are as necessary for us as water and air, thinking about the future of the life of our people and, above all, of our young generation we are implementing our national interests on the road.
